

'Thank God I'm An American!' Is Word After Red Day

MOSINEE, Wis., May 2—Living a day under Communism was a thrilling, never-to-be-forgotten experience for the 2,200 inhabitants of this typically American paper mill town.

Questioning by reporters of a cross section of the townsfolk who witnessed the American Legion's mammoth May Day pageant of "Life Under Communist Rule" showed today they are unalterably opposed to the Soviet way of life and passionately fond of the way we do things in the good old USA.

"To hell with Russia and Communism," was the reaction of Jerry Stenz, student at Central State Teachers college at Stevens Point, Wis.

Mrs. Edward Klug, wife of a merchant who once was mayor of Mosinee, put it this way: "Thank God I'm an American. And I mean that from the bottom of my heart."

And so it went. Not one of dozens of persons interviewed had a good thing to say for the Soviet way of life. All agreed that the Mosinee pageant, with its dramatization of life behind the Iron Curtain, had driven a lesson home and that henceforth nothing would swerve them from the American ideals of freedom and respect for the individual.

Highlight of the pageant saw the typical American community "surrendered" to the Communists.

Nearly 1,500 persons crowded "Red Square," across from City Hall to witness the "surrender." They sat silently in a grandstand, bedecked in red bunting and flying the Red flag.

Mayor Ralph E. Kronenwetter read a statement which said:

"Fellow Citizens! I, as the mayor of Mosinee, ask you in order to avoid bloodshed, to submit to the accomplished fact.

"What happened this morning was a long time in the making and now it is here."

Then he introduced "Commissar" Joseph E. Kornfeder. The latter, in a rasping voice carrying a heavy Russian accent, read a lengthy proclamation. The proclamation said all private property "is hereby abolished and the title invested in the United Soviet States of America."

Kornfeder required 20 minutes to read the proclamation. He then introduced "Commissar" Ben Gitlow as "general secretary" of the Communist Party.

Gitlow, a pistol strapped around his waist, delivered a rabble-rousing speech while hundreds of high school boys and girls in the crowd listened solemnly. Gitlow said:

"Workers! You have been oppressed for all these years by American capitalism. But your suffering is over.

"Capitalist tyranny and exploitation no longer exists. We have set up a people's dictatorship which we call a proletarian dictatorship of the United Soviet States of America."

"We have sent a message to Premier Stalin telling him we have added to the Soviet orbit the greatest production country in the world."

Gitlow added that his forces had received a cable from the Soviet general staff in Moscow to the effect that Alaska has been taken back into the "fatherland." He went on:

"Canada, Canada, will soon follow. It will become a Soviet Canada. The same is true about Mexico and all South America."

"You fellow workers can trust the Communist Party. 'Long live the revolution. 'Long live Premier Stalin.'"

Red proclamations were posted on doors to the public library, City Hall, the postoffice, the Mosinee Commercial Bank, the Wisconsin Power Co., and the paper mill.

Red flags fluttered throughout the city, but strangely enough the Stars and Stripes still were in evidence—flying proudly atop City Hall.

New Draft Asked

Bradley Urges Law Extension

WASHINGTON, May 2—Gen. Omar Bradley declared today that there has been "no improvement" in United States-Soviet relations and called upon Congress to extend the draft law as insurance against a possible "armed attack."

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff endorsed a proposal by Rep. Vinson, (D) Ga., for a compromise law providing for a two-year continuation of registration and classification of 18-year-olds.

The draft setup would be maintained on a standby basis pending further congressional action.

President Truman asked Congress to continue the existing law slated to expire on June 24 for three years without change. However, Vinson's proposal provided for no further inductions unless Congress authorized them through passage of a concurrent resolution finding that a national emergency existed.

Vinson's proposal provided also, upon passage of the congressional resolution, for mobilization of the National Guard and reserves by the President for a period of 21 months.

IT ALSO WOULD continue on a standby basis the provisions in the present law permitting federal seizure of industrial plants if necessary for national defense.

Both Bradley and Vinson emphasized that by maintaining the draft law, the nation would save from four to six months time in mobilizing troops.

Bradley painted a "gloomy" picture of American-Soviet relations in his appearance before the Armed Services Committee. He stated:

"As far as I can see, there has been no improvement. There has been no letup in the pressure that the Soviet Union has exerted wherever there has been an opportunity for disagreement."

"And as far as I can see, there has been no letup in the aggressive expansion of Communism toward its goal of world domination."

Bradley listed what he described as "growing Communist aggression" since he last appeared before the committee in January when he first urged extension of the draft law. He stated:

"Continued trouble in Indochina, and recently the fall of Hainan; a break in diplomatic relations with Bulgaria; and further trouble in Hungary; the shooting down of an American plane, and demands that Western Powers withdraw from Trieste. The question in our minds is: What does it all add up to?"

"Frankly, it gives us little

Big Tin Mill Hit By Blaze

WEIRTON, W. Va., May 2—A flash fire roared through the world's largest tinplate mill at the Weirton Steel Co. today, causing damage estimated at "several hundred thousand dollars."

Firemen from Weirton and four surrounding communities fought for more than two hours to extinguish the blaze, believed to have started in an oil hydraulic system.

The flames swept through the department and hundreds of workers had less than five minutes to escape. All four tinplating lines in the plant were knocked out of commission.

Aid Chief Sees Trouble Ahead When Joe Dies

WASHINGTON, May 2—Foreign Aid Chief Paul Hoffman predicted today that "a period of turbulence will come to Russia" when Premier Joe Stalin died or quits and that the satellite nations will break away from the Kremlin.

Hoffman made the forecast in a panel discussion on "Winning the Peace" before the annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Rep. John Vorys, (R) Ohio, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who participated in the discussion, said that a change in American policy can still salvage China from Communist control despite what he called "the defeatist attitude" of the State Department.

Both Vorys and Hoffman held out hope of a revolution in Russia swinging the tide of the Cold War in favor of the West. Hoffman said:

"The power of a dictator has never yet passed on to a successor without a period of great turbulence. I predict that such a period of turbulence will come to Russia, and that when it does, the satellite states will break away from the Kremlin just as Yugoslavia has already done."

EX-TENANT MAKES CONFESSION TO STARTING DAIRY BARN FIRE

'VILIFIED BY MOTLEY CREW OF CRACKPOTS'

Lattimore Opens Blistering Attack Against McCarthy And Ex-Red Budenz

WASHINGTON, May 2—Owen Lattimore charged today that he has been "criminally libeled" by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., and accused McCarthy's chief witness, Ex-Communist Louis Budenz of being a "liar," a "paid informer" and an "unscrupulous finger man."

Lattimore, Far East expert and university professor alleged by McCarthy to be the "top Soviet espionage agent" in America, declared the senator's charges are "not supported by a shred of evidence, perjured or otherwise."

The angry witness delivered before Senate loyalty investigators one of the most blistering vehement sworn statements in congressional history.

He accused McCarthy of being a "bad policy risk" who hurled "false and malicious" charges from the "foxhole of immunity on the Senate floor" and said that Budenz is either a "plain old-fashioned liar or a pathological liar."

Lattimore said he has been "vilified" by a "motley crew of crackpots, professional informers, hysterics, and ex-Communists who McCarthy would have you believe represent sound Americanism."

The Johns Hopkins university professor repeated his denial that he ever had been a Communist spy, a member of the Communist Party, or a Red sympathizer. He then loosed a stinging counter-blast at McCarthy. Lattimore said:

"I have never been accused, as McCarthy has been, of income tax evasion, of the destruction of records that were in my official custody, or of improperly using an official position for the purpose of advancing my own fortunes, political or otherwise."

Lattimore said bitterly that "so long as a reckless and irresponsible man like Joseph McCarthy is in a position to abuse the privileges of the United States Congress, the quality of a man's life and activities, however impeccable, does not protect him from vile assault." He continued:

"Even our greatest living American, Gen. George Marshall, has been subjected to McCarthy's vicious, dastardly and repeated insult."

This was in reference to McCarthy's charge that Marshall was "pathetic" as secretary of state.

Lattimore scornfully dismissed the testimony of Ex-British Communist Freda Utey, who testified yesterday that while she did not know him to be a Communist he had been a "Judas cow" for the party line. Lattimore called her story "rambling, discursive, distorted and false."

But he leveled the main thrust of his 61-page statement at Budenz, declaring:

"Despite all of the senator's flourishes, promises and threats, he has produced only one witness who has even come within shouting distance of the senator's own wild charges."

Lattimore said that Budenz, in accusing him of having been a member of a Communist cell, "is dutifully pursuing his profession of paid informer and unscrupulous finger man."

He labeled Budenz' testimony a "shabby, sordid, and feeble invention" and as "pure moonshine."

Town's Mayor Finds Village Has No Laws

TIFFIN, May 2—You couldn't get arrested for illegal parking in Bloomville today if you tried.

The town, with a population of about 750, is literally without law on the subject.

Seems the entire set of ordinances for Bloomville have been lost, and the council has not completed passing replacements.

That makes the Seneca County sheriff the only law officer with any power, and he stays in Tiffin. Consequently he only gets called out on serious cases.

Mayor Harold Riddle found that the ordinances had vanished soon after he took office. The mayor figures they might have been thrown out with a lot of worthless papers when someone cleaned out the files.

But he is sure of one thing: You can't arrest a man for violating a law when there is no such law on the books.

Lad Is Found By Policemen

DAYTON, May 2—Twelve-year-old Billy Johnson is safe in his Dayton home today, thanks to the 15-hour efforts of Covington, Ky., and Dayton police.

The boy was found wandering around a lake in Covington Sunday night. He gave police his correct name, but said he couldn't remember where he lived.

Chrysler Strike Parley Resumes After Breather

DETROIT, May 2—Chrysler strike negotiators, refreshed by a five-hour rest after 63 1/2 hours of continuous bargaining, today turned to the job of "wrapping up" a final settlement of the 98-day-old CIO-United Auto Workers walkout.

The company and union bargainers broke off their unprecedented conference—the longest continuous session in automotive history—at 4:30 a. m. today because they were "just too tired to work."

Negotiations were resumed at 9 a. m. with a stiff warning from Federal Mediator E. M. Sweeney that they "will keep on going until a contract is signed."

Sweeney indicated the bargainers will begin another marathon session, if necessary, to write the contract providing $100 monthly pensions and other benefits to the 89,000 strikers.

A CHRYSLER spokesman yesterday maintained a "verbal agreement" had been reached. However, observers pointed out it is evident there will be no agreement announced until the last "I" is dotted and the final

"I" is crossed in each of six contracts covering the strikers.

The union reportedly maintains that the disputed issues are not resolved until they appear in formal written contract form.

The contract signing ceremony will end the costliest automotive tie-up in Detroit's labor history. The direct loss to production, sales, and wages went over the $1.3 billion mark yesterday.

Chrysler strikers would begin trekking back to the plants within two or three days after accord is announced officially, and the 61,000 supplier plant employees made job less by their walkout would be recalled within two weeks.

The marathon session, which began at 1 p. m. Saturday, has resulted in agreement, in principle, on all disputed points on a $100-a-month pension formula and settlement of non-economic contract differences through give-and-take bargaining.

The complexity of the job is indicated by the further fact that 50 economic and 200 non-economic issues, thrashed out in negotiations, must be translated into contract language.

Cradlebaugh Irked By Dismissal

Hearing Slated To Make Plea

An apparently disgruntled tenant farmer has confessed to setting the blaze which destroyed the $50,000 Roy Smith dairy barn in Scioto Township last Thursday.

He is identified as William Cradlebaugh, 46-year-old tenant on the farm who was discharged from his duties on the day before the fire.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the former farm hand signed the confession at about 5 p. m. Monday following a lie detector test and grueling questioning session.

Cradlebaugh was arrested on suspicion last Friday when it was discovered that he had been dismissed on the day before the fire. Monday the man protested his innocence and agreed to submit to a lie detector test to clear himself.

The detector test, however, tended to show that he had been connected with the fire, and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Walter Richards said the machine indicated when he was asked bluntly whether he had set the fire.

THE SHERIFF said that Cradlebaugh was returned to Pickaway County jail following the test for a long questioning period which ended with the confession.

In the confession, the former tenant farmer stated that he had placed the dairy cattle in their stanchions at about 3 a. m. Thursday and then poured kerosene around the inner perimeter of the barn.

He allegedly loosened the cows from their stanchions after spilling the kerosene, then set the building afire.

Cradlebaugh, a hired hand on the Smith farm for about six weeks, said that he had become angered when he was told he was discharged.

However, he cited that he was not angry at the owner, Smith, but at Don Forquer, the farm manager, who had fired him.

Sheriff Radcliff said that Forquer became even more suspicious of the man when he approached him at the fire and told the manager, in effect, that he couldn't be blamed for the fire.

A total of 58 head of livestock was burned to death in the fire, according to Forquer—34 head

Cops, Firemen Demand Raise

COLUMBUS, May 2—Columbus' fire and police departments are out for a $25 monthly pay increase.

A committee representing the two departments requested the boost of city council last night in a follow-up move to the attempt two months ago to gain a minimum salary through an initiated ordinance carrying 15,000 signatures. The ordinance was declared unconstitutional.

It is expected the two departments will circulate a charter amendment petition to establish a higher minimum salary if their demands are not met.

Florida Poll Fight Seen Test Of Fair Deal

MIAMI, May 2—Florida Democrats went to the polls today in what may be record numbers to make their decision in the torrid senatorial contest between Sen. Claude Pepper and Rep. George Smathers.

The neck-and-neck race has been described by impartial observers as a test of President Truman's Fair Deal program.

Fair weather over most of the state led to forecasts that perhaps 600,000 of the more than a million registered Democrats will cast ballots before the polls close.

Pepper has campaigned through the state for a national health program, repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and extended social welfare benefits.

Smathers says Pepper is a "leader of the radicals" whose votes show what he calls a "leftist" trend. Pepper charges his opponent is backed by "big business and special interests."

ing my own fortunes, political or otherwise."

Lattimore said bitterly that "so long as a reckless and irresponsible man like Joseph McCarthy is in a position to abuse the privileges of the United States Congress, the quality of a man's life and activities, however impeccable, does not protect him from vile assault."

Even our greatest living American, Gen. George Marshall, has been subjected to McCarthy's vicious, dastardly and repeated insult."

This was in reference to McCarthy's charge that Marshall was "pathetic" as secretary of state.

Lattimore scornfully dismissed the testimony of Ex-British Communist Freda Utey, who testified yesterday that while she did not know him to be a Communist he had been a "Judas cow" for the party line. Lattimore called her story "rambling, discursive, distorted and false."

But he leveled the main thrust of his 61-page statement at Budenz, declaring:

"Despite all of the senator's flourishes, promises and threats, he has produced only one witness who has even come within shouting distance of the senator's own wild charges."

Lattimore said that Budenz, in accusing him of having been a member of a Communist cell, "is dutifully pursuing his profession of paid informer and unscrupulous finger man."

He labeled Budenz' testimony a "shabby, sordid, and feeble invention" and as "pure moonshine."

Cradlebaugh Irked By Dismissal

Hearing Stated To Make Plea

An apparently disgruntled tenant farmer has confessed to setting the blaze which destroyed the $50,000 Roy Smith dairy barn in Scioto Township last Thursday.

He is identified as William Cradlebaugh, 46-year-old tenant on the farm who was discharged from his duties on the day before the fire.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the farmer had signed the confession at about 3 p. m. Monday following a lie detector test and grueling questioning session. Cradlebaugh was arrested on suspicion last Friday when it was discovered that he had been dismissed on the day before the fire. Monday the man protested his innocence and agreed to submit to a lie detector test to clear himself.

The detector test, however, tended to show that he had been connected with the fire, and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Walter Richards said the machine deceived when he was asked bluntly whether he had set the fire.

THE SHERIFF said that Cradlebaugh was returned to Pickaway County jail following the test for a long questioning period which ended with the confession.

In the confession, the former tenant farmer stated that he had placed the dairy cattle in their stanchions at about 3 a. m. Thursday and then poured kerosene around the inner perimeter of the barn.

He allegedly loosened the cows from their stanchions after spilling the kerosene, then set the building afire.

Cradlebaugh, a hired hand on the Smith farm for about six weeks, said that he had become angered when he was told he was discharged.

However, he cited that he was not angry at the owner, Smith, but at Don Forquer, the farm manager, who had fired him.

Sheriff Radcliff said that Forquer became even more suspicious of the man when he approached him at the fire and told the manager, in effect, that he couldn't be blamed for the fire.

A total of 58 head of livestock was burned to death in the fire, according to Forquer — 34 head

Cops, Firemen Demand Raise

COLUMBUS, May 2—Columbus' fire and police departments are out for a $25 monthly pay increase.

A committee representing the two departments requested the boost of city council last night in a followup move to the attempt two months ago to gain a minimum salary through an initiated ordinance carrying 15,000 signatures. The ordinance was declared unconstitutional.

It is expected the two departments will circulate a charter amendment petition to establish a higher minimum salary if their demands are not met.

Florida Poll Fight Seen Test Of Fair Deal

MIAMI, May 2—Florida Democrats went to the polls today in what may be record numbers to make their decision in the torrid senatorial contest between Sen. Claude Pepper and Rep. George Smathers.

The neck-and-neck race has been described by impartial observers as a test of President Truman's Fair Deal program.

Fair weather over most of the state led to forecasts that perhaps 600,000 of the more than a million registered Democrats will cast ballots before the polls close.

Pepper has campaigned through the state for a national health program, repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and extended social welfare benefits.

Smathers says Pepper is a "leader of the radicals" whose votes show what he calls a "leftist" trend. Pepper charges his opponent is backed by "big business and special interests."

Red Engineers Work On Isle

HONG KONG, May 2—Chinese press reports claimed today that Russian engineers and naval and airforce advisers have been sent to Hainan island to advise Chinese Communist forces who have just seized control from the Nationalists.

The accounts quoted new arrivals from Peiping who said the Soviets were being sent to enlarge both the Sanya airfield and Yulin harbor on the island off the southeast mainland.

Chrysler Strike Parley Resumes After Breather

DETROIT, May 2—Chrysler strike negotiators, refreshed by a five-hour rest after 6 1/2 hours of continuous bargaining, today turned to the job of "wrapping up" a final settlement of the 98-day-old CIO-United Auto Workers walkout.

The company and union bargainers broke off their unprecedented conference—the longest continuous session in automotive history—at 4:30 a. m. today because they were "just too tired to work."

Negotiations were resumed at 9 a. m. with a stiff warning from Federal Mediator E. M. Sweeney that they "will keep on going until a contract is signed."

Sweeney indicated the bargainers will begin another marathon session, if necessary, to write the contract providing $100 monthly pensions and other benefits to the 89,000 strikers.

A CHRYSLER spokesman yesterday maintained a "verbal agreement" had been reached. However, observers pointed out it is evident there will be no agreement announced until the last "I" is dotted and the final

"T" is crossed in each of six contracts covering the strikers. The union reportedly maintains that the disputed issues are not resolved until they appear in formal written contract form.

The contract signing ceremony will end the costliest automotive tie-up in Detroit's labor history. The direct loss to production, sales, and wages went over the $1.3 billion mark yesterday.

The complexity of the job is indicated by the further fact that 50 economic and 200 non-economic issues, thrashed out in negotiations, must be translated into contract language.

Among the cattle destroyed was a $2,000 blooded bull, he said.

CIRCLEVILLE Fire Chief Talmer Wise was the first to voice the opinion that the blaze had been purposefully set.

After returning from the fire run, the chief said:

"It was just like somebody might have poured gasoline all around the foundation."

The ring of fire around the barn prevented the rescue of any of the doomed cattle or equipment, Wise added.

Radcliff said the affidavit formally accusing the man of setting fire to the building was to have been filed Tuesday, while preliminary hearing on the accusation probably will follow either late Tuesday or Wednesday.

Cradlebaugh, meanwhile, is being held in the county jail, along with William Graham, his first cousin, who is accused of having set fire to the Heffner Grain Co. building near Williamsport recently.

'More Judicial' Ruling Is Made

COLUMBUS, May 2—The question of "slots, slots, who's got the slots?" will be a little more confusing in the future.

The state board of liquor control yesterday ruled out Liquor Enforcement Chief Anthony J. Rutkowski as sole custodian of slot machines seized on the premises of liquor permit holders.

From now on, the board ruled, Rutkowski will keep the machines only until the violating permit holder is brought before the board for a hearing. The slots then will be stored in the board's own storeroom.

"More judicial" was the reason advanced for the change.

Catholic Cooler Plan Is Aired

CLEVELAND, May 2—How a catholic cooler of protection against corrosion is applied to underwater coolers is to be described today at the 15th mid-year meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's refining division.

Charles R. Draughon and Edwin B. McNeil are scheduled to address the Cleveland assembly on the subject.

The two men said yesterday that a cooler's life through catholic protection may be extended "indefinitely."

Minor Seeking Divorce Here

A divorce petition has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Patricia L. Reed through her mother, Hazel Weaver, against Charles E. Reed.

Hutchison was fined and sentenced for assault and battery against Noah Waliser, also of Laurelville. Waliser accused Hutchison of striking him in the head with a hammer, then kicking him.

Squire Root suspended the 30-day sentence and placed the man on six months' probation.

statewide offices at stake—could do to shake the electoral out of its lethargy.

What desultory interest there was seemed concentrated in the races for the Republican nomination for governor and the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate to oppose Sen. Robert A. Taft in November.

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, a six-term originally from Akron, and James A. Rhodes, youthful, two-term mayor of Columbus and the only one to win reelection in the capitol city in recent history, are battling it out for the GOP nomination to oppose Governor Lausche, who seems certain to be re-nominated on the Democratic slate.

On the Democratic side, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, now in his 14th year in that office, and Toledo Mayor Michael V. DiSalle are pacing a seven-man field of senatorial aspirants.

Ebright is a slight betting favorite over Rhodes and Ferguson, an even narrower choice over DiSalle, but the margins are so small that no one is dismissing the possibility that one or even both of the big-city mayors may come through.

Akron Facing Transit Debate

AKRON, May 2—This is showdown week in Akron—as far as the city's transportation company and the city council are concerned.

Council's public utilities committee unanimously rejected a 13-cent fare proposed by the Akron Transportation Co. late yesterday. Franchise cancellation legislation is expected to be started today by the council and a verbal battle—at least—likely will result.

Boiling Beans Cause Blaze

A popping pan of beans caused minor damage by fire at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the home of Richard Taffe, West Mound street.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said Mrs. Taffe had placed a pan of beans on a kerosene stove earlier Tuesday and had gone uptown to shop. When she returned, she found that the beans had boiled over and that the stove had set fire to a door frame and curtains.

"She put out the fire with a garden hose," Wise said. "Then called us to make sure."

15-Cent Bus Fare Feared

CLEVELAND, May 2—Greater Clevelanders had the not-so-bright prospect of a 15-cent transit fare by July 1 if the transit employees' union succeeds in securing its 1950 contract demands.

Don Hyde, general manager of the Cleveland Transit System, said that if the union gets its demands for a 19 to 23-cent hourly increase, fares will have to be boosted to meet the wage increase.

Hyde added that every penny granted the union would cost the CTS about $115,000 annually. Already this year the CTS is $140,000 in the red.

Bicycle Tags Going On Sale

Circleville police are to begin selling 1950 bicycle license tags Wednesday.

Police Chief William F. McCrady said the new tags must be purchased by bicycle owners who plan to ride the wheels this year. The plates cost 25 cents, he said.

Last year a total of nearly 1,000 tags was sold, McCrady said. Generally, tags will be sold between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

City Firetruck Getting Tank

Circleville firemen Tuesday were awaiting a chance to install a new 150-gallon water tank in the city firetruck.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the new tank was purchased to replace the leaky tank now installed in the city engine. He said the present tank has been welded several times to halt the leaks.

The new tank has arrived in the station and the firemen were awaiting a "break" Tuesday to begin installation.

Commissioners Rehire Riffle During Parley

Pickaway County commissioners put in a busy day Monday.

Voted 2-1 to hire Dog Warden Harry Riffle throughout May.

Approved a renewal contract with Columbus Workhouse.

Appointed Nelson Baker members of Pickaway County Child Welfare Board to succeed himself. His term runs five years.

Let a contract for 8,000 treasurer's receipts to Fitzpatrick's Printery on a low bid of $214.75. Only other bid was for $215.

Appointed Marvin Landrum of New Holland apiary inspector at $8 per day and expenses.

Granted an additional appropriation of $100 to Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder to pay for extra help.

Commissioner William Goode registered his usual negative vote on the motion to rehire Riffle for another month. It was understood that state authorities, while waiting for a proposed meeting with the county commissioners, are proceeding with investigations along other lines in the same case. The state auditor has returned a finding of about $1,600 against Riffle.

The new contract with Columbus Workhouse provides for the county to pay $1 per day for each prisoner sent up. The county also is required to pay transportation costs and the cost of retaking any prisoner who may violate parole.

Under the contract only able bodied prisoners over 16 may be sent to the workhouse. The county is required to pay for all habeas corpus proceedings for or against a prisoner, and to pay for medical and hospital attention and all extra expense.

Under the previous contract the county was not required to pay medical or hospital costs.

Excited Woman Takes Own Life

NEWARK, May 2—Anxiety over a minor automobile accident was advanced today by Licking County Coroner James H. Pullock as the reason for the apparent suicide of Mrs. Margaret Andrews, 42-year-old Newark woman.

Mrs. Andrews was involved in the accident Sunday evening. Police investigating the incident said she appeared "highly nervous" and was "unable to give a clear account of the accident." Her husband, Harold, found her a short while later unconscious on the floor of their home.

He rushed her to Newark hospital where she died 20 minutes later of an overdose of sleeping pills.

'Bama Election Fight Watched

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 2—Truman "Loyalists" fight States Rights for control of the 72-man Alabama Democratic executive committee today in a primary contest that has attracted more attention than the campaigns of 15 candidates for governor.

The "Loyalists" seek to win back control of the state delegation that gave its 11 electoral votes to States Rights Candidate J. Strom Thurmond in the 1948 presidential race.

The contest is expected to show whether the States Rights movement is gaining or losing in the Deep South.

Methodist Parley Called

A special meeting of Circleville First Methodist church will be held Tuesday evening.

Called by the district superintendent, Dr. George Wilson of Lancaster, the meeting is open to the public. Church officials stressed that all Methodists "should attend" the conference along with local congregation of officers.

The original operation was performed by Drs. Norman I. Goldberg and Aaron Gershkoff of Providence, R. I., in October 1948.

The clinic agreed that until the method is proven it is "out of question for the ordinary denture practice," in view of the expense of the surgery and the implant, in addition to the inconvenience for the patient.

Today's session will be highlighted by a discussion of the pathology, classification and treatment of periodontal disease.

Akron Facing Transit Debate

AKRON, May 2—This is showdown week in Akron—as far as the city's transportation company and the city council are concerned.

Council's public utilities committee unanimously rejected a 13-cent fare proposed by the Akron Transportation Co. late yesterday. Franchise cancellation legislation is expected to be started today by the council and a verbal battle—at least—likely will result.

15-Cent Bus Fare Feared

CLEVELAND, May 2—Greater Clevelanders had the not-so-bright prospect of a 15-cent transit fare by July 1 if the transit employees' union succeeds in securing its 1950 contract demands.

Don Hyde, general manager of the Cleveland Transit System, said that if the union gets its demands for a 19 to 23-cent hourly increase, fares will have to be boosted to meet the wage increase.

Hyde added that every penny granted the union would cost the CTS about $115,000 annually. Already this year the CTS is $140,000 in the red.

shine, or rather impure hogwash."

Lattimore urged the senators to end the "spurious sensationalism" of McCarthy. He asked that McCarthy's "individual victims" be vindicated and that "if they deserve it" the State Department personnel accused by McCarthy of being Communist agents or sympathizers be given a clean bill of health. He then added:

"I suggest that it is your solemn duty to point out in clear and unambiguous terms that the processes of the Senate of the United States have been debased by this man McCarthy; that he has been contemptuous of this committee; that he has lied, distorted and vilified."

Lattimore also accused McCarthy of using "disreputable and disreputable sources of false information," of "disgracing his party and the people of his state and nation," and of "grievously prejudicing the interests of our country."

The witness quoted a paragraph of McCarthy's Senate speech in behalf of Nazi storm troopers sentenced to death for the "Malmady massacre" of American soldiers. Lattimore wound up his statement with these words:

"I hope with all my heart that Joe McCarthy will come to understand that the principles of justice and fairness which he loudly proclaimed on behalf of the Nazi murderers are also the birthright of American citizens."

Dentist Says Metal Implants Not Perfected

CLEVELAND, May 2—Dr. Walter J. Pryor, a Cleveland dentist, believes that the revolutionary idea of fastening metal implants in a patient's mouth is still in the experimental stage and should not be considered successful yet.

Dr. Pryor, head of the prosthetic study section of the Cleveland Dental Society, holding its annual Spring clinic, said:

"The cases we have had so far have not been under observation long enough to warrant a recommendation of this technique to the public."

The original operation was performed by Drs. Norman I. Goldberg and Aaron Gershkoff of Providence, R. I., in October 1948.

The clinic agreed that until the method is proven it is "out of question for the ordinary denture practice," in view of the expense of the surgery and the implant, in addition to the inconvenience for the patient.

Today's session will be highlighted by a discussion of the pathology, classification and treatment of periodontal disease.

Commissioners Rehire Riffle During Parley

Pickaway County commissioners put in a busy day Monday. They:

Voted 2-1 to hire Dog Warden Harry Riffle throughout May.

Approved a renewal contract with Columbus Workhouse.

Appointed Nelson Baker members of Pickaway County Child Welfare Board to succeed himself. His term runs five years.

Let a contract for 8,000 treasurer's receipts to Fitzpatrick's Printery on a low bid of $214.75.

Only other bid was for $215.

Appointed Marvin Landrum of New Holland apiary inspector at $8 per day and expenses.

Granted an additional appropriation of $100 to Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder to pay for extra help.

Commissioner William Goode registered his usual negative vote on the motion to rehire Riffle for another month. It was understood that state authorities, while waiting for a proposed meeting with the county commissioners, are proceeding with investigations along other lines in the same case. The state auditor has returned a finding of about $1,600 against Riffle.

The new contract with Columbus Workhouse provides for the county to pay $1 per day for each prisoner sent up. The county also is required to pay transportation costs and the cost of retaking any prisoner who may violate parole.

Under the contract only able bodies prisoners over 16 may be sent to the workhouse. The county is required to pay for all habeas corpus proceedings for or against a prisoner, and to pay for medical and

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

At Lindy's the other night, after the usual talk of mice, men, dearth and Texas, the conversation got around to the subject of heels.

"Present company excepted," said a vaudeville agent, "who's the biggest heel you ever heard of?"

"My candidate," said Ken Murray, "is that guy in San Antonio who put ground glass in his wife's cornflakes when she complained she wasn't getting enough roughage."

"Kid stuff," said Milton Berle. "My vote goes to Harry Ness, a seven-ply heel that the O'Sullivan people would give their last patent for."

"Harry Ness?" I said. "What orphan asylum did he burn down?"

Well, according to Berle, Harry Ness (not real name, but pretty close) was a hoover who occasionally played the borscht circuit and who, when he did, was generally paid off in borscht. In spite of which, he seldom went hungry, and for this he had his ever-workin' wife, Evie, to thank.

Evie wasn't much to look at, but she was devoted to the hoover and didn't mind running a switchboard to keep him in vim and vultures; nevertheless, though he would have been strictly from famine without her, Harry was always sniping at her.

"CAN'T YOU DO something about that hair?" he would say after she had brought home the bacon and fried it for him.

His biggest beef, however, was about her cooking. To hear him tell it, she was the worst cook who ever cut a finger opening a can of beans.

One afternoon, after gagging on a spinach pie Evie had left for his lunch, the hoover set out to make the rounds of the booking offices, and at one of them he got to chinning with an adagio dancer named Zelda who was flat nowhere but in the feet. When she explained she was looking for a new partner, he gave her to understand her worries were over.

After a few weeks of rehearsal, the new act was ready, and for a tryout Harry fast-talked himself into a date at a minor Catskill Mountain resort.

He said nothing to Evie when he packed his bags that Friday, but he was sure he would never again set eye on his dowdy dame or eyetooth on her dreary dinners.

The act opened on Saturday and you could have cut the silence which greeted it with a damp rag. The hoover, of course, figured there were only two things wrong with it—his partner and the audience.

A few mornings later, while reading a copy of Variety in bed, he ran across a headline which made his eyeballs do a rumba: "Hoover's helpmeet cops quiz cash." The article went on to report that the wife of Harry Ness had guessed the name of a mystery song and been awarded $2,000.

Within the hour, Harry had checked out of the hotel, leaving a tender note for Zelda: "Sorry, baby, the act stinks and I miss my wife."

And just before boarding the train, he wired Evie that he'd be back at six that night and missed her something awful.

ALL THE WAY to New York, the hoover kept thinking about what he was going to do with the two grand—there was that powder-blue gabardine in Nat Lew- is's window; there was that torch singer he'd been meaning to date as soon as he got his hands on a few bucks; most important of all, there was the Colony Restaurant where a man with his kind of cabbage could give his palate a workout.

But when he got home, he found neither hair nor hangnail of little Evie—only a note on the kitchen table:

"Dearest Harry, like you always told me I knew all along I was not good enough for you and now that I got hold of a little cash money I am going to Nevada where I can get a divorce and not be a burden any longer. Good by forever and best of luck, Evie."

"P. S. — I left your supper in the icebox."

Man Is Bound To Grand Jury In Theft Case

Leonard Rockwell, 43, of Portsmouth, was held for grand jury action on $1,000 bond Monday for allegedly breaking and entering Top Hat Restaurant last Friday. The bond was imposed by Mayor Thurman I. Miller.

p. m. Friday in the southend of Circleville by Police Chief William F. McCrady and Officer George Green when they received a tip that a man was spending money loosely.

When brought back to jail and booked, McCrady said, the man confessed that he had entered the restaurant and had stolen money from an unlocked cash register. The affidavit accusing Rockwell was filed by Vora Butler, owner of the restaurant.

FOR BETTER OFFICIALS

A CLASSIFIED list of eligibles for government offices of the more important sort is a promising idea of President Truman. He has asked Donald Dawson, one of his administrative assistants, to prepare such a register. Republicans as well as Democrats will be included, because there are many commissions which by law have to be divided between the two major parties.

How are the important posts filled now? Probably there has been no basic change within the memory of man. As an example, suppose a vacancy occurs in the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is apt to be a rough decision that it is the turn of New England to get the job, or the Southwest, or some other section. Senators from the chosen area then submit recommendations, and out of the lot the most likely or the one with the strongest political recommendation is picked. Cabinet officers are apt to have a final veto.

Under the new plan, a card index would be created of persons of proper caliber for important posts. These would be suggested by political, business and educational leaders.

Such a roster would be of vast help to any president, especially one lacking wide political acquaintance. Calvin Coolidge, for example, desiring an attorney-general, fell back, for lack of any personal knowledge of eminent lawyers, on a college classmate, Harlan F. Stone, later chief justice. When Stone was promoted to the supreme court, President Coolidge apparently could think of no one except his old Vermont neighbor, John Garibaldi Sargent. Stone proved an outstanding choice, Sargent was more on the run-of-mine order. Had Coolidge had the proposed roster to consult, his choice might have been different.

It is to be hoped that this is not merely a paper project, but is actually to be carried out, and put to use.

FIVE DOLLAR PARKING

ONE OF the most drastic solutions yet proposed for the traffic problem comes out of New York City. Mayor William O'Dwyer thinks that more publicly owned parking lots and garages would help. To finance these he suggested, rather offhandedly, that each motorist should be charged an annual five dollar fee.

One trouble with this suggestion is that, judging from complaining motorists do about present auto fees, the administration which put through an added five dollar levy could hardly expect to stay in office beyond the next election.

Never worry about the course of events; just be sure you are right and hold to your faith.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In the first place, witnesses cannot testify calmly and fully under a battery of klieg lights, with television and movie cameras grinding away. Anyone who has performed on television knows that the lights devastate the performers, most of whom suffer even when they seem as funny as Milton Berle tries to be. The police, when they want to break down a witness, put him under the eye-searing light which makes it possible for the audience to see the man, but he is actually in darkness. He cannot see what is in front of him. It is like a little boy reflecting the sun into your eyes with a mirror.

Yet, these bright lights are used during sessions of the Tydings committee, which is probing the most serious subject facing the American people. Whose fault it is, I do not know. One side tells me that Tydings wants it that way. Another side says that whenever Tydings tries to do a good job, the Republicans accuse him of being secretive. The fact is that the investigation remains a circus. The lights should be turned off. The television equipment should be removed. This is a task that requires calm and quiet and wisdom.

Experience has shown that there is only one effective and successful method for making this type of investigation. It has three stages:

1. The committee's counsel and investigators gather the material, interrogate witnesses and prepare questions. This takes time, but the committee can know what it is doing and does not operate on a hit-miss basis. What's the hurry? The truth has been buried for years; the disinterment might be handled with propriety.

2. All witnesses should first be heard in executive session where they are put through the paces and the facts sifted from the bluff and bragging.

3. Then the pertinent matter should be brought out at the open session and if the witness wants to lie in public, he is faced with what he said under oath in the executive sessions.

This is not being done. Instead, the witnesses who wish to repudiate Louis Budenz are given a chance to do so in open sessions without adequate interrogation. While the committee has retained what they call Republican counsel to give the impression of fairness, Robert Morris, the Republican counsel, has not been permitted to ask a single question.

Furthermore, there is no scientific approach to the subject. The only possible way to get at the facts is to build a case. It has been generally assumed that the "Amerasia" case would be the first one to be built and thoroughly investigated.

Frank Brooks Bielaski, OSS operative, who made the first "Amerasia" raid, was subpoenaed to be heard last Thursday. He sat waiting to be called. He was not called all day Thursday. Instead the committee fudged its time away with Earl Browder, who challenged its right to ask him questions. Browder was once the leader of American Communism, but was expelled from the party because the party line was changed by the Kremlin.

I had hoped that the Tydings investigation would get off the tangent of a quarrel between President Truman and Senator McCarthy. So far, it is nothing more than that. And that is not important. What the committee should investigate is the betrayal of his country by its own sons. It has not yet even approached the subject.

Treatment for Mental Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE mental disorder known as manic-depressive psychosis tends to run in cycles. The condition usually develops gradually in quiet, intellectual people who become increasingly unstable and nervous until suddenly there is a severe explosion of excitement and mania. This, in turn, may be followed by weeks or even months of wild conduct which gradually subsides until the patient again becomes calm and peaceful.

Recently, Dr. Oliver R. Bryant of Minnesota tried a new form of treatment for patients during the excitable period of this disorder.

Called Histamine

It is known that the substance called histamine, which is normally present in the body in small amounts, may be produced in larger amounts in persons suffering from allergy. This excessive histamine may cause a variety of symptoms and affect many of the body tissues. It causes the blood vessels in the brain to dilate or enlarge, and produces headache in many cases.

There are also substances known as antihistamines which get rid of the excessive histamine. It was treatment with these antihistamines that was carried out in six patients with manic-depressive psychosis.

It was found that the administration of the antihistamine during the excitable period caused these patients to quiet down quite rapidly, often within 24 hours.

Great Improvement

Treatment was continued for several weeks and brought about great improvement in these cases. All of the treated patients remarked about the improved quality of their thinking processes following the use of the preparation.

Of course, this type of treatment cannot be expected to cure the mental disorder. However, it would appear that it does tend to relieve the symptoms during the excitable period and hence is of great value from this standpoint. The use of the drug caused no reactions and had no effect on the blood or the urine.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. D.: I am fifty years old. Why is it that every morning when I get up to go to work I am so tired out?

Answer: There are many causes of fatigue. It may be due simply to improper health habits, such as overwork and insufficient rest. The common cause is an infection somewhere in the body, such as in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, or gallbladder.

You are in need of thorough examination by your physician to find the cause of your trouble.

The Gentle Heart

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

THERE were very few guests invited. Gary and Natalie had kept their list small and the living room never became too crowded. The punchbowl appeared with Jerome Mayhew's Christmas punch in it, and tiny hot canapés and crisp little sandwiches came from the kitchen in a steady stream. Every one talked at once, and the wedding party was in full swing when Natalie came to rest briefly beside her sister. After their first fearful embrace, Natalie had stood to receive her friends.

Now she said, in a low voice, "Gary and I are going to slip away soon. Jenny, and Brent has orders to see that the party doesn't last too long. We don't want you to be over-tired."

Jenny said, "How long will you be gone?"

"Only a week. We hadn't expected that much time, because Gary took his full vacation this summer, but his boss said a wedding was something special, and we could have until after New Year's. We're going down on the Cape."

"The Cape?" Jenny echoed. "But nothing will be open this time of year, will it?"

Natalie smiled happily. "Jack Tyson has a little place down there, and he's lending it to us. He'll have it opened by the caretaker, and everything in readiness for us. It's a year-round house, and has a furnace, so we'll be comfortable. And beautifully alone," she added, her eyes shining in anticipation.

And then, suddenly realizing that Jenny might be wondering how she would get along by herself, she added, "Fred and Diane are going to stay here with you. Mrs. Henlo has her son home for Christmas vacation, so she'll keep the house on Trevelyan Road, and Di is going to do the housekeeping here."

"Di?" Jenny couldn't believe her ears.

Natalie giggled. "So she says. She says she wouldn't trust anyone else to look after you properly, and if that isn't love—coming from Di—I don't know what is! She has even canceled her modeling engagements for the coming week. There wasn't much, anyhow, it being Christmas," she added hastily, lest Jenny should fret about Diane's sacrifice.

But Jenny still could not believe it. Diane, deliberately giving up her work in order to keep house for her, Jenny. She hugged her newly married sister with fervor. "You'll have a wonderful time, I know," she said.

Over Natalie's shoulder, she spied Dick, standing in the doorway, unsure of whom to greet first. She called to him, "Come over here, Dick, and felicitate the bride."

He shook Natalie's hand solemnly, glancing askance at Jenny. "Don't I congratulate her?" he asked in puzzlement.

"It's the groom who gets the congratulations," Jenny smiled, and he sighed with relief.

Then, staring hard at the bride, he said, "But she doesn't look a bit different, does she? Except happier, of course."

Jenny laughed outright. "That's a big 'except,'" she told him, "and counts for a lot. The sandwiches are over there on the cherry table," she added, and watched him start toward them purposefully.

She studied her sister, who was slowly edging toward the hall door. Yes, Natalie did look happier—immeasurably happier. God grant, she said softly to herself, that she would always remain so.

It was a strangely peaceful week. Not that life in the Mayhew household was dull, or that nothing happened. The peace was inward, and Jenny, letting its healing powers permeate her being, grew strong and almost happy again.

Diane proved a distressing housekeeper, but Jenny deliberately shut her eyes to her sister's deficiencies, and remembered only that Di had made a real sacrifice in order to stay with her. The linens were wrinkly—Diane had let them get too dry before she ironed—and the silver grew tarnished, but she really did try to keep the place clean, and her beautiful manicure was marred by two broken nails before the week was out. She didn't mention them, either, or complain in any way, and that was a big thing in Jenny.

Fred came home every evening to the Mayhew house and they all dined together and sat afterward in the comfortable living room. Diane was usually exhausted from her unaccustomed efforts, and Jenny had to smile to think that the girl who could stand unwearingly for hours beneath the glare of bright lights, who could pose with graceful immobility for a period of time which would leave anyone else stiff and cross, was tired by this simple round of duties in the home.

"We're all different," she murmured to herself more than once. "I couldn't possibly do what she does."

Diane did try to do her best. On the morning when the oatmeal was so salty that no one could eat it, she burst into tears, but Fred and Jenny soon comforted her, and they all ate dry cereal instead. Soon Diane was able to smile at her mistake, and took extra pains with the dinner that day. Yet no matter how hard she tried, her meals were simply food, no more.

"I don't understand it," she said rebelliously, coming to stand by Jenny's chair. "I do exactly what you tell me, or what it says in the cook book, and yet it never seems to be tasty. Like your cooking! What do I leave out?"

"Love," Jenny smiled. "The love of cooking. If you haven't got it, you can't put it in, so don't worry about it. Di. Your cooking is fine as far as I'm concerned. And you have improved wonderfully."

Diane sat down suddenly on the hassock beside her sister. "Love," she said thoughtfully. "That's true of anything, isn't it? Oh, not the man-and-woman kind of love, although that's fearfully important, too. But there are so many kinds. Love of life, and the kind of love we three sisters have for each other—family love; and love for your work. You know, Jenny, when I first started modeling, I didn't really like it. But it was so much more interesting, even in its dull moments, than housework, that I stuck with it. And now I'm really beginning to love it. I want to do a better and better job, and I suppose that's a sign, isn't it?"

Jenny nodded. Diane was seldom so articulate, and she did not interrupt. "And yet there's always my love for Fred. I tried to deny it there for a while, you know," Diane gave a quick sideways glance at her sister. "Because it seemed like I was with so many things I didn't like. But I found out that some of them, anyway, went along with Fred and being married to him, so I had to learn to accept them. At least, I am learning," she corrected herself honestly, "and it isn't always easy. But now that we have Mrs. Henlo, and I'm really enjoying my work..." Her voice trailed off, and Jenny said quietly, "What if there are children, Di? Have you thought of that?"

Diane's laugh was jerky. "It's kept me awake nights," she admitted. Then, frankly, "I don't know, Jenny. I just don't know. It's one of those things that will have to be met when it comes. I'd feel a lot happier if I could be settled in my mind, one way or another."

Jenny rested her hand on Diane's shoulder. "Don't forget," she told her sister, "that you are growing all the time. Perhaps when that problem comes, you'll have grown enough to solve it."

The bill in Congress to dedicate a Pennsylvania pothole as a national memorial will have Republican support. They're sorry they didn't think of it first.

But there may be a little argument over what goes on the tablet. The Democrats want to say "this world's largest pothole, left by a glacier, was dedicated by a Democratic administration."

The Republicans think it should be shortened to "this world's largest pothole was left by a Democratic administration."

But the Democrats can always come back by saying "we've got the pothole; have you got the two chickens for it?"

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—During the methodical and sometimes whimsical progress of the center of Manhattan northward, virtually every part of town up to Columbus Circle has had a crack at being the heart of the matter.

Once, of course, it was the Bowery where the wine ran red and the dancing girls can-can; then it was Fourteenth street, and for a long while you really felt out of things on a Saturday night if you weren't in the vicinity of 23rd street. Over on the east side of that neighborhood, for instance, Harry K. Thaw put a bullet through Stanford White atop the old Madison Square Garden. And during those halcyon days, unless you ate at Cavanagh's steakhouse once a week, you were a pathetic figure.

Cavanagh's still exists, 74 years after its opening by a tall young Irishman named John J. Cavanagh, and it still is crowded nightly. But it no longer is in the center of town, as it was when its doors were thrown open in the old Chelsea section that was built around the French colony in New York, and it gets its trade now because it serves a good meal in a pleasant joint.

Once—ah, once it was the Twenty-One of its day, and you couldn't thread your way through its tables without stumbling over President Roosevelt (the other one), General Grant, Diamond Jim Brady, John L. Sullivan, Sarah Bernhardt and any number of Astors and Whitneys, depending on how well you could handle your wine without stumbling.

Still a spy, although somewhat seamed, man, John Cavanagh likes to talk mostly about Sullivan, the Boston Strong Boy. Cavanagh appreciated the picturesque charm of the fighter, but he will admit now that Sullivan was not always welcome at his eatery.

"He was a wonderful fellow," John recalls, "but when he was in his cups his language was hardly that of the parlor, and we were forced to maneuver him into a corner and put a screen around him." We still have a few souls like that around Broadway, to this day, but no one, unfortunately, puts a screen around them.

SULLIVAN LIKED TO PLAY LITTLE JOES on the Cavanagh clientele. He and his friend, actor Nat Goodwin, worked one dodge. Goodwin would come in, order a drink, and presently be joined at the bar, and jostled, by Sullivan.

"This," Nat would say, righteously, "is a gentleman's place. Stop crowding me or I'll throw you out." Sullivan would reply meekly, "Pardon me, sir; I didn't mean to be rude," but Goodwin would roar, "I refuse to accept your apology!" And he would seize John L. by the seat of his pants and throw him out of Cavanagh's while the crowds shuddered.

Brady often dined at the place, with beautiful Lillian Russell, and Cavanagh remembers Lillian with wonderment. "She was a buxom girl," he says, "but she always ordered the most fattening entrees on the menu. Never paid the slightest attention to her figure."

Once Brady and Miss Russell came in and ordered Irish stew. There were two kinds of Irish stew, Aristocrat and Dublin. "What's the difference?" the flashy Brady asked Victor, a soft-spoken Irish waiter. "Ah," replied Victor, "—it's in the Aristocrat that we put all the meat."

In Brady's day, the best steak in the house cost 25 cents, and a huge order of oysters went for 15 cents. Even later, when writer Thomas Wolfe came in, from his room across the street, night after night, it was possible to eat a steak without hocking your watch.

Wolfe was so tall, incidentally, that Cavanagh gave him a special table in the rear, where the overhead beam was cut out for him. He would sit there hour after hour, watching the other diners and presumably soaking up atmosphere, and Lord knows how many thousands of pages about life in a restaurant Max Perkins had to cut from Wolfe's florid writings.

TODAY, AN AMIABLE ONETIME VAUDEVILLE HOOVER named Ray Doyle manages the place, and his corps of waiters includes some venerable souls like Tom Duffy, who once served Sullivan and Brady.

The average length of service of the 50 waiters in the place is 25 years. It was in Cavanagh's that United States Trucking, the largest outfit of its kind in the Twenties and still one of the major trucking organizations, was organized by Big and Little Reardon and Al Smith.

The Reardons once wanted to buy the restaurant and present it to this same waiter, Duffy, but John Cavanagh never sold. It never visibly bothered Duffy; he's been there for 40 years.

FOR BETTER OFFICIALS

A CLASSIFIED list of eligibles for government offices of the more important sort is a promising idea of President Truman. He has asked Donald Dawson, one of his administrative assistants, to prepare such a register. Republicans as well as Democrats will be included, because there are many commissions which by law have to be divided between the two major parties. How are the important posts filled now? Probably there has been no basic change within the memory of man. As an example, suppose a vacancy occurs in the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is apt to be a rough decision that it is the turn of New England to get the job, or the Southwest, or some other section. Senators from the chosen area then submit recommendations, and out of the lot the most likely or the one with the strongest political recommendation is picked. Cabinet officers are apt to have a final veto.

Under the new plan, a card index would be created of persons of proper caliber for important posts. These would be suggested by political, business and educational leaders.

Such a roster would be of vast help to any president, especially one lacking wide political acquaintance. Calvin Coolidge, for example, desiring an attorney-general, fell back, for lack of any personal knowledge of eminent lawyers, on a college classmate, Harlan F. Stone, later chief justice. When Stone was promoted to the supreme court, President Coolidge apparently could think of no one except his old Vermont neighbor, John Garibaldi Sargent. Stone proved an outstanding choice. Sargent was more on the run-of-mine order. Had Coolidge had the proposed roster to consult, his choice might have been different.

It is to be hoped that this is not merely a paper project, but is actually to be carried out, and put to use.

FIVE DOLLAR PARKING

ONE OF the most drastic solutions yet proposed for the traffic problem comes out of New York City. Mayor William O'Dwyer thinks that more publicly owned parking lots and garages would help. To finance these he suggested, rather offhandedly, that each motorist should be charged an annual five dollar fee.

One trouble with this suggestion is that, judging from complaining motorists do about present auto fees, the administration which put through an added five dollar levy could hardly expect to stay in office beyond the next election.

Never worry about the course of events; just be sure you are right and hold to your faith.

Treatment for Mental Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE mental disorder known as manic-depressive psychosis tends to run in cycles. The condition usually develops gradually in quiet, intellectual people who become increasingly unstable and nervous until suddenly there is a severe explosion of excitement and mania. This, in turn, may be followed by weeks or even months of wild conduct which gradually subsides until the patient again becomes calm and peaceful.

Recently, Dr. Oliver R. Bryant of Minnesota tried a new form of treatment for patients during the excitable period of this disorder. It was found that the administration of the antihistamine during the excitable period caused these patients to quiet down quite rapidly, often within 24 hours.

Great Improvement

Treatment was continued for several weeks and brought about great improvement in these cases. All of the treated patients remarked about the improved quality of their thinking processes following the use of the preparation.

Of course, this type of treatment cannot be expected to cure the mental disorder. However, it would appear that it does tend to relieve the symptoms during the excitable period and hence is of great value from this standpoint. The use of the drug caused no reactions and had no effect on the blood or the urine.

Called Histamine

It is known that the substance called histamine, which is normally present in the body in small amounts, may be produced in larger amounts in persons suffering from allergy. This excessive histamine may cause a variety of symptoms and affect many of the body tissues. It causes the blood vessels in the brain to dilate or enlarge, and produces headache in many cases.

There are also substances known as antihistamines which get rid of the excessive histamine. It was treated with these antihistamines that was carried out in six patients with manic-depressive psychosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. D.: I am fifty years old. Why is it that every morning when I get up to go to work I am so tired out?

Answer: There are many causes of fatigue. It may be due simply to improper health habits, such as overwork and insufficient rest. The common cause is an infection somewhere in the body, such as in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, or gallbladder.

You are in need of thorough examination by your physician to find the cause of your trouble.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

THERE were very few guests invited. Gary and Natalie had kept their list small and the living room never became too crowded. The punchbowl appeared with Jerome Mayhew's Christmas punch in it, and tiny hot canapés and crisp little sandwiches came from the kitchen in a steady stream. Everyone talked at once, and the wedding party was in full swing when Natalie came to rest briefly beside her sister. After their first tearful embrace, Natalie had stood to receive her friends.

Now she said, in a low voice, "Gary and I are going to slip away soon, Jenny, and Brent has orders to see that the party doesn't last too long. We don't want you to be overruled."

Jenny said, "How long will you be gone?" "Only a week. We hadn't expected that much time, because Gary took his full vacation this summer, but his boss said a wedding was something special, and we could have until after New Year's. We're going down on the Cape."

"The Cape?" Jenny echoed. "But nothing will be open this time of year, will it?"

Natalie smiled happily. "Jack Tyson has a little place down there, and he's lending it to us. He'll have it opened by the caretaker, and everything in readiness for us. It's a year-round house, and has a furnace, so we'll be comfortable. And beautifully alone," she added, her eyes shining in anticipation.

And then, suddenly realizing that Jenny might be wondering how she would get along by herself, she added, "Fred and Diane are going to stay here with you. Mrs. Henlo has her son home for Christmas vacation, so she'll keep the house on Trevelyan Road, and Di is going to do the housekeeping here."

"Di?" Jenny couldn't believe her ears. Natalie giggled. "So she says. She says she wouldn't trust anyone else to look after you properly, and if that isn't love—coming from Di—I don't know what is! She has even canceled her modeling engagements for the coming week. There wasn't much, anyhow, it being Christmas," she added hastily, lest Jenny should fret about Diane's sacrifice.

But Jenny still could not believe it. Diane, deliberately giving up her work in order to keep house for her, Jenny. She hugged her newly married sister with fervor. "You'll have a wonderful time, I know," she said.

Over Natalie's shoulder, she spied Dick, standing in the doorway, unsure of whom to greet first. She called to him, "Come over here, Dick, and felicitate the bride."

He shook Natalie's hand solemnly, glancing askance at Jenny. "Don't I congratulate her?" he asked in puzzlement.

"It's the groom who gets the congratulations," Jenny smiled, and he sighed with relief.

Then, staring hard at the bride, he said, "But she doesn't look a bit different, does she? Except happier, of course."

Jenny laughed outright. "That's a big 'except,'" she told him, "and counts for a lot. The sandwiches are over there on the cherry table," she added, and watched him start toward them purposefully.

She studied her sister, who was slowly edging toward the hall door. Yes, Natalie did look happier—immeasurably happier. God grant, she said softly to herself, that she would always remain so.

It was a strangely peaceful week. Not that life in the Mayhew household was dull, or that nothing happened. The peace was inward, and Jenny, letting its healing powers permeate her being, grew strong and almost happy again.

Diane proved a distressing housekeeper, but Jenny deliberately shut her eyes to her sister's deficiencies, and remembered only that Di had made a real sacrifice in order to stay with her. The linens were too dry before she ironed—and the silver grew tarnished, but she really did try to keep the place clean, and her beautiful manicure was marred by two broken nails before the week was out. She didn't mention them, either, or complain in any way, and that was the big thing to Jenny.

Fred came home every evening to the Mayhew house and they all dined together and sat afterward in the comfortable living room. Diane was usually exhausted from her unaccustomed efforts, and Jenny had to smile to think that the girl who could stand unwearingly for hours beneath the glare of bright lights, who could pose with graceful immobility for a period of time which would leave anyone else stiff and cross, was tired by this simple round of duties in the home.

"We're all different," she murmured to herself more than once. "I couldn't possibly do what she does."

Diane did try to do her best. On the morning when the oatmeal was so salty that no one could eat it, she burst into tears, but Fred and Jenny soon comforted her, and they all ate dry cereal instead. Soon Diane was able to smile at her mistake, and took extra pains with the dinner that day. Yet no matter how hard she tried, her meals were simply food, no more.

"I don't understand it," she said rebelliously, coming to stand by Jenny's chair. "I do exactly what you tell me, or what it says in the cook book, and yet it never seems to be tasty. Like your cooking! What do I leave out?"

"Love," Jenny smiled. "The love of cooking. If you haven't got it, you can't put it in, so don't worry about it, Di. Your cooking is fine as far as I'm concerned. And you have improved wonderfully."

Diane sat down suddenly on the hassock beside her sister. "Love," she said thoughtfully. "That's true of anything, isn't it? Oh, not the man-and-woman kind of love, although that's fearfully important, too. But there are so many kinds. Love of life; and the kind of love we three sisters have for each other—family love; and love for your work. You know, Jenny, when I first started modeling, I didn't really like it. But it was so much more interesting, even in its dullest moments, than housework, that I stuck with it. And now I'm really enjoying my work... I want to do a better and better job, and I suppose that's a sign, isn't it?"

Jenny nodded. Diane was seldom so articulate, and she did not interrupt. "And yet there's always my love for Fred. I tried to deny it there for a while, you know. Diane gave a quick sideways glance at her sister. "Because it seemed tied up with so many things I didn't like. But I found out that some of them, anyway, went along with Fred and being married to him, so I had to learn to accept them. At least, I am learning," she corrected herself honestly, "and it isn't always easy. But now that we have Mrs. Henlo, and I'm really enjoying my work..." Her voice trailed off, and Jenny said quietly, "What if there are children, Di? Have you thought of that?"

Diane's laugh was jerky. "It's kept me awake nights," she admitted. Then, frankly, "I don't know, Jenny. I just don't know. It's one of those things that will have to be met when it comes. I'd feel a lot happier if I could be settled in my mind, one way or another."

Jenny rested her hand on Diane's shoulder. "Don't forget," she told her sister, "that you are growing all the time. Perhaps when that problem comes, you'll have grown enough to solve it." (To Be Continued)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The bill in Congress to dedicate a Pennsylvania pothole as a national memorial will have Republican support. They're sorry they didn't think of it first.

But there may be a little argument over what goes on the tablet. The Democrats want to say "this world's largest pothole, left by a glacier, was dedicated by a Democratic administration."

The Republicans think it should be shortened to "this world's largest pothole was left by a Democratic administration."

But the Democrats can always come back by saying "we've got the pothole; have you got the two chickens for it?"

This Rep. O'Neill is a man to watch. Any fellow who can make a national monument out of a hole in the ground has unlimited possibilities.

At the moment there are no plans for developing the hole, but it would make a lovely place to dump potatoes.

In 1783-85 he published A Grammatical Institute of the English Language in three parts, a spelling-book, a grammar and a reader. He also did some political writing. He then began his greatest composition—for which he is famous—in 1807. He worked on it in France and finished it in England. It came out in two volumes, and an English edition soon followed. He died in New Haven May 28, 1843. Who was he?

2—Born in Hillsboro, N. H., Nov. 23, 1804, he attended Bowdoin college, where he formed a lifelong friendship with Nathaniel Hawthorne, the author. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1827. He became a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives, and next year was elected to Congress. He took part in the War with Mexico. In 1853 he became nominee for the United States presidency as a "dark horse," and was elected. He lost the support of the northern states during his administration because of his compromising attitude on the slavery question, and was not nominated for a second term. NEW YORK—During the methodical and sometimes whimsical progress of the center of Manhattan northward, virtually every part of town up to Columbus Circle has had a crack at being the heart of the matter.

Once, of course, it was the Bowery where the wine ran red and the dancing girls can-can'd; then it was Fourteenth street, and for a long while you really felt out of things on a Saturday night if you weren't in the vicinity of 23rd street. Over on the east side of that neighborhood, for instance, Harry K. Thaw put a bullet through Stanford White atop the old Madison Square Garden. And during those halcyon days, unless you ate at Cavanagh's steakhouse once a week, you were a pathetic figure.

Cavanagh's still exists, 74 years after its opening by a tall young Irishman named John J. Cavanagh, and it still is crowded nightly. But it no longer is in the center of town, as it was when its doors were thrown open in the old Chelsea section that was built around the French colony in New York, and it gets its trade now because it serves a good meal in a pleasant joint.

Once—ah, once it was the Twenty-One of its day, and you couldn't thread your way through its tables without stumbling over President Roosevelt (the other one), General Grant, Diamond Jim Brady, John L. Sullivan, Sarah Bernhardt and any number of Astors and Whitneys, depending on how well you could handle your wine without stumbling.

Still a spy, although somewhat seasoned, man, John Cavanagh likes to talk mostly about Sullivan, the Boston Strong Boy. Cavanagh appreciated the picturesque charm of the fighter, but he will admit now that Sullivan was not always welcome at his eatery.

"He was a wonderful fellow," John recalls, "but when he was in his cups his language was hardly that of the parlor, and we were forced to maneuver him into a corner and put a screen around him." We still have a few souls like that around Broadway, to this day, but no one, unfortunately, puts a screen around them.

SULLIVAN LIKED TO PLAY LITTLE JOSES on the Cavanagh clientele. He and his friend, actor Nat Goodwin, worked one dodge. Goodwin would come in, order a drink, and presently be joined at the bar, and jostled, by Sullivan.

"This," Nat would say, righteously, "is a gentleman's place. Stop crowding me or I'll throw you out." Sullivan would reply meekly, "Pardon me, sir; I didn't mean to be rude," but Goodwin would roar, "I refuse to accept your apology!" And he would seize John L. by the seat of his pants and throw him out of Cavanagh's while the crowds shuddered.

Brady often dined at the place, with beautiful Lillian Russell, and Cavanagh remembers Lillian with wonderment. "She was a buxom girl," he says, "but she always ordered the most fattening entrees on the menu. Never paid the slightest attention to her figure."

Once Brady and Miss Russell came in and ordered Irish stew. There were two kinds of Irish stew, Aristocrat and Dublin. "What's the difference?" the flashy Brady asked Victor, a soft-spoken Irish waiter. "Ah," replied Victor, "it's in the Aristocrat that we put all the meat."

In Brady's day, the best steak in the house cost 25 cents, and a huge order of oysters went for 15 cents. Even later, when writer Thomas Wolfe came in, from his room across the street, night after night, it was possible to eat a steak without hocking your watch. Wolfe was so tall, incidentally, that Cavanagh gave him a special table in the rear, where the overhead beam was cut out for him. He would sit there hour after hour, watching the other diners and presumably soaking up atmosphere, and Lord knows how many thousands of pages about life in a restaurant Max Perkins had to cut from Wolfe's florid writings.

TODAY, AN AMIABLE ONETIME VAUDEVILLE HOOVER named Ray Doyle manages the place, and his corps of waiters includes some venerable souls like Tom Duffy, who once served Sullivan and Brady.

The average length of service of the 50 waiters in the place is 25 years. It was in Cavanagh's that United States Trucking, the largest outfit of its kind in the Twenties and still one of the major trucking organizations, was organized by Big and Little Reardon and Al Smith.

The Reardons once wanted to buy the restaurant and present it to this same waiter, Duffy, but John Cavanagh never sold. It never visibly bothered Duffy; he's been there for 40 years.

May Food Picture Is Bright

Chicken And Pork To Be Plentiful

COLUMBUS, May 2—May is going to be a chicken and pork month, judging from food production prospects.

Large supplies of both those foods, along with a heavy output of eggs in the midwest, were predicted today by the United States Department of Agriculture.

May's chicken story is one of large cold storage holdings and steady marketing of hens culled from flocks. Near the end of May, these will be coupled with the largest supplies of broilers ever to come off the production lines.

Marketing of Fall pigs should hit a peak this month, making larger than ever supplies of low priced pork available.

Milk production in May will be moving toward the year's high level in June, and that should mean even larger supplies of dairy products at seasonally low prices.

May's food larder is going to be well banked with vegetables. Seven vegetables in particular take the spotlight as the items to be most plentiful on vegetable row next month. Good quality carrots for which midwesterners have been paying low prices for weeks lead the way.

These are joined by cabbage, onions, late crop Irish potatoes, lettuce, canned corn, and canned lima beans.

FOR THE FIRST time since last Fall, the USDA has moved apples off the list of fruits the nation has in most plentiful supply. Apple eating has been heavy enough to pare cold storage holdings down nearer to normal size, and prices have moved up. Raisins, prunes, and canned peaches are the plentiful fruits in heaviest supply.

Large quantities of onions from the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas will continue to move to market in May. Most of the May lettuce will be coming from California coastal areas where the crop is one-fourth larger than last year.

Clean-Up Week Gets Underway In Circleville

Clean-up Week in Circleville got underway officially Monday.

Service Director John Neuding said that throughout the week a six-man crew will work through the city cleaning rubbish out of alleys. Three trucks will be used.

Neuding said rubbish set out in alleys by residents will be picked up by the crew. He urged that the rubbish be placed at the side of the alley.

"That way," he explained, "it won't obstruct the alley or injure car tires."

Bishop From India Is Scheduled To Speak Here Thursday Evening

Importing Stuff In Surplus Gets Brannan's Nod

WASHINGTON, May 2—Agriculture Secretary Brannan says it would be unfair to foreign nations if the United States completely choked off imports of farm commodities that are in surplus in this country.

On the other hand, Brannan says it would be unfair to the U. S. if imports were permitted to take advantage of market support operations in this country.

Brannan favors a middle-of-the-road course, he says. And this compromise is embodied in the International Trade Organization. A charter for such an agency, where all the boys would get together and thrash out some trade rules, now awaits congressional ratification.

If the U. S. throttled importing farm products that are surplus in this country, besides being unfair, he says, it just might touch off hot "economic warfare."

The problem can best be solved through an organization like the ITO, he says. Brannan maintains, too, that such an agency could go a long way toward assuring U. S. farmers continued good foreign markets.

feature the local Methodist senior choir.

Bishop Mondol recently arrived in America from Siam where he had been a delegate to the East Asia Christian conference held in Bangkok under the auspices of the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council. He is in America now in the interests of the "Advance for Christ and His Church."

Bishop Mondol was born in Bengal Province, the son of the late Rev. A. K. Mondol, a well-known minister of the Methodist church. He was educated at Collins Institute, Calcutta; St. Paul's college and the Scottish Church college, both in Calcutta; and was graduated with honors by the University of Calcutta. He has received honoring doctorates from Boston university and from Dickinson college.

In 1921 he was ordained a minister of the Methodist church and joined the Bengal Annual Conference.

He served as a member of that conference—as pastor, as superintendent, as principal of Collins Institute, as conference secretary of Sunday school work—during the next twenty years. In 1941 he was elected a bishop of the church by the lay and ministerial delegates of India and Burma.

Bishop Mondol has been a frequent visitor in America, and has spoken in various parts of America, Europe, Burma and China. Four times he visited the United States as a delegate from the Bengal Conference to the General Conference of the Methodist Church. He has served as president of the Bengal Christian Council (interdenominational), and has been a chaplain of the Railway English church in Asansol.

Bride Found Stabbed To Death In Hotel

CHICAGO, May 2—A bride of 10 days, clad in part of her trousseau, was found stabbed to death early today in her honeymoon apartment here.

Police said the handle of an eight-inch butcher knife protruded from the chest of Mrs. Blanche Castaneda, 24.

Her husband, Raymond, 31, was held for an inquest scheduled for later today.

He told police he found his bride lying face down on the floor beside a bed when he returned from work at the main postoffice. Castaneda said he picked up his wife, believing she had fainted.

Investigators said the postal worker told them his wife remarked Sunday night:

"I'm going to commit suicide and you'll be blamed for it."

The young woman, who married after a two-month-courtship, left three notes. One to her husband read:

"Dear Ray: Forgive me and may God have mercy on your soul. Your wife, Blanche."

Reverse Letter Addresses Urged

COPENHAGEN, May 2—Reverse the writing of names and addresses on envelopes, a Danish postman suggested today, and letters will get to their destination sooner.

His recommendation to Danish postal authorities was that the name of the country be written first, followed by the town and street, and, finally, the name of the addressee.

The contention is that it is much easier to sort a letter addressed: New York, N. Y., 1000 Broadway, Mr. John Doaks. The Danish postoffice said it would take its time thinking over the new method.

Jim Lantz Dies

LANCASTER, May 2—Last rites will be conducted here today for Dr. James M. Lantz, 68-year-old physician who died Saturday. He was twice a Democratic candidate for U. S. representative.

Week Is Spent In Theatre By Lad, 11

CORNING, N. Y., May 2—The management of the Palace theatre conceded with dim enthusiasm today that Ralph Ballinger is its most constate patron.

During the last week 11-year-old Ralph has seen 21 full performances, three each day. Because this didn't leave much time for anything else, Ralph set up housekeeping in the theatre, behind the screen.

Each day he stole out at 2 o'clock to join the audience and stayed until 11:30 p. m.

Ralph's alarmed parents had notified police and an alert was circulated throughout the east.

Meanwhile, employees noticed that every morning the glass shield of a candy vending machine was broken and a new supply of candy bars was missing. So they decided to lie in wait and captured Ralph stealing at midnight into the lobby where the machine was located.

Ralph's parents, who are sending him back to school today, said he had lost no weight from his week's stay at the movies. Ralph's only comment was: "I like movies."

Bride Found Stabbed To Death In Hotel

CHICAGO, May 2—A bride of 10 days, clad in part of her trousseau, was found stabbed to death early today in her honeymoon apartment here.

Police said the handle of an eight-inch butcher knife protruded from the chest of Mrs. Blanche Castaneda, 24.

Her husband, Raymond, 31, was held for an inquest scheduled for later today.

He told police he found his bride lying face down on the floor beside a bed when he returned from work at the main postoffice. Castaneda said he picked up his wife, believing she had fainted.

Investigators said the postal worker told them his wife remarked Sunday night:

"I'm going to commit suicide and you'll be blamed for it."

The young woman, who married after a two month-courtship, left three notes. One to her husband read:

"Dear Ray: Forgive me and may God have mercy on your soul. Your wife, Blanche."

Reverse Letter Addresses Urged

COPENHAGEN, May 2—Reverse the writing of names and addresses on envelopes, a Danish postman suggested today, and letters will get to their destination sooner.

His recommendation to Danish postal authorities was that the name of the country be written first, followed by the town and street, and, finally, the name of the addressee.

The contention is that it is much easier to sort a letter addressed: New York, N. Y., 1000 Broadway, Mr. John Doaks.

The Danish postoffice said it would take its time thinking over the new method.

Week Is Spent In Theatre By Lad, 11

CORNING, N. Y., May 2—The management of the Palace theatre conceded with dim enthusiasm today that Ralph Balinger is its most constate patron.

During the last week 11-year-old Ralph has seen 21 full performances, three each day. Because this didn't leave much time for anything else, Ralph set up housekeeping in the theatre, behind the screen.

Each day he stole out at 2 o'clock to join the audience and stayed until 11:30 p. m.

Ralph's alarmed parents had notified police and an alert was circulated throughout the east.

Meanwhile, employees noticed that every morning the glass shield of a candy vending machine was broken and a new supply of candy bars was missing. So they decided to lie in wait and captured Ralph stealing at midnight into the lobby where the machine was located.

Ralph's parents, who are sending him back to school today, said he had lost no weight from his week's stay at the movies.

Ralph's only comment was: "I like movies."

FAO Meeting To Study Hoof, Mouth Disease

WASHINGTON, May 2—The nations of the world are out to see what they can drum up in the way of a cooperative campaign against foot and mouth disease of livestock.

The UN Food and Agriculture Organization has called a meeting, May 14 to 20 in Paris, of its 63 member nations and any others that are interested.

Most countries of Europe, Asia and South America are infected with the highly contagious disease of cattle, sheep, goats, swine and other cloven-footed animals. The U. S., Canada, Australia and New Zealand are the principal large areas more successful in keeping the disease out.

One major topic at the conference, a spokesman says, will probably be the methods used by U. S. and Mexican technicians in the costly drive to wipe foot and mouth disease out in Mexico.

The meeting will attempt to line up a procedure by which the nations will help each other during outbreaks and exchange knowledge and techniques.

'Isolationism' Feared In U.S. Support Program

WASHINGTON, May 2 — Advisers to Agriculture Secretary Brannan claim "artificial" price supports may force the United States into an "isolationist" role in international farm trade.

The foreign agricultural trade policy advisory committee says that any price program which maintains commodities above their normal market level can lead to tariff barriers against the agricultural products of other countries.

Other dangers brought on by such programs, the committee warns, is the difficulty of exporting, the temptation to dump U.S. foods overseas, expanded government trading and similar programs by other nations. The committee adds:

"Our efforts to get other countries to lower trade barriers and to work together for maintaining an enduring world peace will be seriously hampered, if not completely nullified, if this country pursues domestic programs in conflict with our international aims."

LOST 40 LBS. ADELPHIA LADY PRAISES RENNEL

Here's what Mrs. Mildred Brokaw, Box 242, Adelphi, Ohio writes us. "I am 30 years old, 5 ft. 3 inches tall and when I started taking Rennel weighed 175 lbs. I always had a miserable stuffed-up feeling and could hardly stoop to tie my shoes. Thanks to Rennel I now weigh 135 lbs., feel fine and look better. My dress size has changed from 40 to 16. I have recommended it to all my friends." Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Rennel.

1 Person Hurt In 2 Separate Road Mishaps

One person was injured in one of two similar traffic accidents last weekend in Pickaway County.

State Highway Patrolman Charles Watters said the first accident occurred at 3:15 p. m. Sunday on Route 138 near Clarksburg.

Watters said a car driven south by Floyd Rossiter, 54, of Chillicothe failed to negotiate a right curve, plunged toward a telephone pole and rolled onto its top as the driver whipped the wheel to avoid striking the pole.

The driver, his wife and year-old son escaped injury, the patrolman said.

The second accident occurred at 9:10 a. m. Sunday on Route 104 just north of Route 316.

Watters said a car driven by John M. Smith, 53, of Huntington, W. Va., was travelling north on a straight, level stretch of road when the vehicle went out of control. The car plunged to the berm on the right side of the road, spun around and also rolled onto its top.

Smith told the patrolman that his left front wheel had locked.

Mrs. Gladys Smith, 47, wife of the driver, suffered a lacerated nose and right foot in the mishap, as well as a sprained neck. She was treated in Berger hospital.

A 6-year-old boy travelling in the car, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, was unhurt.

FAO Meeting To Study Hoof, Mouth Disease

WASHINGTON, May 2—The nations of the world are out to see what they can drum up in the way of a cooperative campaign against foot and mouth disease of livestock.

The UN Food and Agriculture Organization has called a meeting, May 14 to 20 in Paris, of its 63 member nations and any others that are interested.

Most countries of Europe, Asia and South America are infected with the highly contagious disease of cattle, sheep, goats, swine and other cloven-footed animals. The U. S., Canada, Australia and New Zealand are the principal large areas more successful in keeping the disease out.

One major topic at the conference, a spokesman says, will probably be the methods used by U. S. and Mexican technicians in the costly drive to wipe foot and mouth disease out in Mexico.

The meeting will attempt to line up a procedure by which the nations will help each other during outbreaks and exchange knowledge and techniques.

'Isolationism' Feared In U.S. Support Program

WASHINGTON, May 2—Advisers to Agriculture Secretary Brannan claim "artificial" price supports may force the United States into an "isolationist" role in international farm trade.

The foreign agricultural trade policy advisory committee says that any price program which maintains commodities above their normal market level can lead to tariff barriers against the agricultural products of other countries.

Other dangers brought on by such programs, the committee warns, as the difficulty of exporting, the temptation to dump U.S. foods overseas, expanded government trading and similar programs by other nations. The committee adds:

"Our efforts to get other countries to lower trade barriers and to work together for maintaining an enduring world peace will be seriously hampered, if not completely nullified, if this country pursues domestic programs in conflict with our international aims."

LOST 40 LBS. ADELPHIA LADY PRAISES RENNEL

Here's what Mrs. Mildred Brokaw, Box 242, Adelphi, Ohio writes us: "I am 30 years old, 5 ft. 3 inches tall and when I started taking Rennel weighed 175 lbs. I always had a miserable stuffed-up feeling and could hardly stoop to tie my shoes. Thanks to Rennel I now weigh 135 lbs., feel fine and look better. My dress size has changed from 40 to 16. I have recommended it to all my friends." Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your drugstore pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Don't be switched to another product, insist on genuine Rennel.

1 Person Hurt In 2 Separate Road Mishaps

One person was injured in one of two similar traffic accidents last weekend in Pickaway County.

State Highway Patrolman Charles Watters said the first accident occurred at 3:15 p. m. Sunday on Route 138 near Clarksburg.

Watters said a car driven south by Floyd Rossiter, 54, of Chillicothe failed to negotiate a right curve, plunged toward a telephone pole and rolled onto its top and expects to return home this week.

The Walnut Township schools will hold an "open house" meeting Friday evening, during which the building will be open for inspection.

John M. Smith, 53, of Huntington, W. Va., was travelling north on a straight, level stretch of road when the vehicle went out of control. The car plunged to the berm on the right side of the road, spun around and also rolled onto its top.

The second accident occurred at 9:10 a. m. Sunday on Route 104 just north of Route 316.

Watters said a car driven by

Smith told the patrolman that his left front wheel had locked. Mrs. Gladys Smith, 47, wife of the driver, suffered a lacerated nose and right foot in the mishap, as well as a sprained neck. She was treated in Berger hospital.

A 6-year-old boy travelling in the car, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, was unhurt.

TERMITES
Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators" and "part time" entomologists offer "fantastic" guarantees and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The most unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.

Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

There will be no more restless nights with these wonderful pillows on her bed. Priced at $8.95, $9.95 and $10.95. Mason Furniture.

ADD A HARMONICA player to the "jam-session". Another musical instrument that has been popularized by Television. Perhaps one of the easiest learned musical instruments. er's Day—don't let her work around the kitchen, cooking a big meal—go down to Isaly's and buy the ingredients for a picnic. If the weather is inclement serve it at home. Get home baked ham, potato salad or chips, cottage cheese, Swiss cheese, pickles, dills, sliced cold cuts, many varieties, cookies, soft drinks and don't forget ice cream. What a surprise that would be for mother and would she be pleased.

GOING ON a picnic? May is the month for early picnics—take along a container with ice cold Miller's Hi Life beer. How refreshing it will be with a picnic lunch. Miller's Hi Life is a premium beer and so clear it looks almost like champagne. 20c per bottle at Palm's Grocery and Carry-Out.

"WHAT'S COOKIN'" would be secondary when dropping into a kitchen with a row of plants in plastic flowerpots in striking colors on the window sill. Harpster and Yost have these plastic flowerpots in red, blue, green and yellow and all the colors are the brightest shades of the basic colors. Really decorative little containers to add to the beauty of your home. They are priced according to size at 19c, 29c, 39c and 59c.

TERMITE
Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.
Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators" and "part time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.
An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.
The almost unbelievable cunning of the termites makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.
Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.
Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.
We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

Sandy Hill Leads Tigers To 23-0 Greenfield Win

ONLY 2 HITS ALLOWED

Sandy Hill Leads Tigers To 23-0 Greenfield Win

Circleville baseball team Monday fattened its collective batting average at the expense of hapless Greenfield McClain hardballers.

The Tigers, backing up the stellar mound performance of All-America Footballer Sandy Hill, scored a 23-0 shutout over the host Greenfielders in the contest.

Monday's win over Greenfield completed the first round in South Central Ohio League competition for the Tigers without a defeat.

The CHS'ers have beaten all of their SCOL foes to date. They scored a 6-2 win over Washington C. H., 13-1 over Hillsboro, 20-1 over Wilmington and the 23-0 win at Greenfield.

Only Washington C. H. ranks close to the Tigers. It has lost only the one contest.

CIRCLEVILLE scored the shutout Greenfield victory on a total of 17 hits. Only two of the Tiger safeties were good for extra bases, however.

Chunky Abe Ruhl, veteran shortstop, cracked out a home-run in the third frame with no one on base while Sandy lined out a three-bagger in the second inning with two on base.

Sandy proved as capable on the mound for the Tigers Monday as he did last football season on the grid. He earned the shut-out win by whiffing 10 of the opposing batsmen, allowing only two hits and failing to give the McClainers a free pass to first. No Greenfield runner got past second base.

In addition, Sandy's batting ranked him at the top of the list as he scored four runs on three safeties in five trips to the plate.

Ruhl also earned three hits in five trips to the platter during the lopsided match, along with Catcher John Valentine.

Circleville opened the Monday massacre meekly enough by scoring only one run in the first inning. The Tigers piled onto the bobbled in the second, however, to tally a brace of runs, added another single in the third and knocked a chink from the dam in the fourth with four runs.

The CHS'ers pulled the dam down in the fifth frame, however, as they scored a total of 13 runs before a new Greenfield hurler could put out the fire.

CIRCLEVILLE is to face its first district tournament test at 4 p. m. Wednesday against Delaware at the Columbus East high school diamond.

Southpaw Dudley Morris, veteran Tiger hurler, is expected to start in the Wednesday tournament opener.

If the Tigers win the Wednesday encounter, they are scheduled to play again Friday, conflicting with a game scheduled against Washington C. H. also for Friday. A Tiger tourney win probably will postpone the league match against Washington.

KofP Softball Loop Formed

A four-team Knights of Pythias softball league was set up Monday in Ashville K of P hall.

Teams entered in the K of P loop to date are from Ashville, Canal Winchester, Harrisburg and Mt. Sterling. The league opener tentatively is set for May 22.

Final plans for the league season are to be formulated Thursday during a special meeting of Palmetto K of P lodge. All games are expected to be played on the Canal Winchester diamond.

Giosa Collects Split Decision

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 — Plucky Eddie Giosa, who recently deserted the lightweight ranks, stood out today as a permanent fixture in the welter-weight bracket by virtue of a workmanlike verdict over Canada's Johnny Greco.

Rugged Eddie, an astute man with the fist and footwork, peppered and punched his heavier opponent enough to merit a split decision over the 10-round distance here last night.

Redlegs Buy Whitey Reis

BOSTON, May 2 — Bob "Whitey" Reis, 20-year-old infielder of the Boston Braves, has been claimed for the $10,000 waiver price by the Cincinnati Reds.

Reis, playing third base with the Tribe's Eau Claire club, hit .338 last season and was chosen the Most Valuable Player in the Northern League. He was a bonus player and could not be farmed out again by the Braves.

Cardinals Come Up From Floor To Hand Dodgers 3-2 Defeat

NEW YORK, May 2—Count the St. Louis Cardinals present and accounted for in the 1950 National League pennant race.

The Redbirds vividly remember how their loose play in the final hectic days of last season's flag battle allowed the Brooklyn Dodgers to "back" into the championship.

They recall, too, that they won their season's series with the Brooks, 12 games to 10 last year. The Cardinals are confident that they will win this time around and last night they got off to a running start.

A three-run uprising in the ninth inning gave Eddie Dyer's runner-ups a 3 to 2 victory over the Dodgers and Lefty Joe Hatten.

It was an up-from-the-floor win for the Redbirds. Hatten appeared well on his way to his second consecutive shutout for the first eight innings, but the roof fell in the ninth.

HE STARTED the fatal frame by walking Chuck Diering. Enos Slaughter singled, but Hatten retired Pinch-Hitters Marty Marion and Eddie Kazak on a strike out and an easy fly.

Then Red Schoendienst singled to score Diering, and Hatten was replaced by Willard Ramsdell, the knuckle ball artist.

Pinch-Swinger Bill Howerton questioned Ramsdell's artistry with a single that scored Slaughter and then Willie ended everything by wild-pitching in the winning run.

Hatten had been engaged in a mound duel with Max Lanier until Jackie Robinson opened the Brooklyn seventh with a double and scored on Carl Furillo's single.

In the eighth, Hatten's single, a sacrifice and Jim Russell's one-base hit made it 2-0 in favor of Brooklyn.

Cloyd Boeyer, who replaced Lanier in the ninth, was credited with the win while Hatten took the loss for the league-leading Dodgers.

This was the only game played in the majors yesterday. The scheduled meeting between the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics was postponed because of rain.

Wilt Sets New Mile Mark, But No 'Record'

ATLANTIC CITY, May 2— FBI Agent Fred Wilt ran the fastest outdoor mile ever performed by an American Sunday, but he will not get official recognition for the feat.

Wilt won the fourth annual Atlantic City Boardwalk Mile in 4:5.5. It bettered the previous mark of 4:06 set by Bill Hulse in Berea, O., in 1943.

But two things kept Wilt's time from becoming an official record.

1 — He had a twenty-mile tailwind.

2 — There is no record category for either a straightaway mile or a board race run outdoors.

Gunder Hagg of Sweden holds the world's record with a time of 4:01.4.

The official indoor record is held by Gil Dodds who won the Wanamaker Mile in 1948 in 4:05.3.

Wilt won yesterday's straightaway race by five yards over Horace Ashenfelter of Penn AC. Ashenfelter was clocked in 4:07.5. John Twomey of Illinois AC was third in 4:09.

Chisox Want No Part Of Dick Wakefield

CHICAGO, May 2 — Chicago's White Sox, refusing to honor Outfielder Dick Wakefield's demands for $5,500 extra salary, told the New York Yankees today "we don't want him, you can have him."

General Manager Frank Lane notified the Yanks he is calling off the deal in which the Sox were to acquire Wakefield in exchange for Johnny Ostrowski and an unspecified sum of cash.

Wakefield received $22,500 last year for warming the Detroit Tiger bench and then went over to the Yankees at a $17,000 salary. He said he was willing to take the cut because he expects New York to win the pennant.

The once-promising outfielder said he would not play ball with the White Sox, however, unless they restore his $5,500 pay cut.

Notified of the White Sox decision to cancel the whole deal, Wakefield said he has no intention of rejoining the Yankees "even if it means the end of my baseball career."

Local Cancer Society Pressing Drive To Raise $3,000

Research Need Cited By Leaders

More Education On Disease Sought

Stressing that one out of five Americans eventually will develop cancer and that the dreaded disease now is the cause of one out of every eight deaths, officials of Pickaway County Cancer Society this week were pressing their campaign to raise funds.

Chairman of the local chapter, Clarence Rushing, said that he believed counties would chip in to make the county's quota of $3,000.

Chief aide to Rushing is Mrs. Curtis Wertman of Circleville. They are heading the campaign to raise funds which will be used primarily to finance research. However advanced modern medicine might be, cancer still is much of a mystery, Rushing said. However, he cited that great strides have been made by chemists.

Part of the fund will be used in education, the chairman stressed. He pointed out that the American Cancer Society believed that one out of every three cancer deaths last year could have been prevented by early detection and proper education of the patients.

The American Cancer Society has reported that more than a half-million cancer cases now are under treatment and that another 350,000 cases will be diagnosed this year.

Meanwhile, the society reports that the cancer death rate has risen from 65 per 100,000 persons in 1900 to 140 this year. The society believes that the cancer death rate will double in another 50 years—unless science is able to gain headway through research.

IN RECENT YEARS, the cause of certain diseases has been traced to a virus, a molecule that seems to bridge the gap between living and inert matter. Some kinds of pneumonia, polio, smallpox and even the common cold are among virus diseases.

Does a virus cause cancer? So far there is no evidence whatsoever that human cancers are caused by them. On the other hand, some scientists are convinced that they are at the root of a cancer of connective tissue in chickens, skin cancer in rabbits, breast cancer in mice and cancer of the kidney in frogs.

Viruses are tiny bits of protein with properties of living matter in that they can multiply under certain conditions and that they can be "killed" by extreme heat, prolonged cold and very acid and alkaline conditions, as well as by the body's own defensive systems. They are so small that it is difficult to see them when magnified 100,000 times under the electron microscope.

A virus-caused disease could be cured by drugs. And theoretically, at least, prevented by immunological methods like vaccination.

Under American Cancer Society research grants, scientists are exploring the possibilities that viruses may cause certain kinds of cancer. Dollars given this month will support cancer research next year.

City Planning Panel Is Warning Permit Law To Be Fully Enforced

Circleville planning and zoning commission Tuesday warned that there are teeth in a city law requiring builders to obtain a permit before starting new construction.

And in the future, the commission continued, the bite will be put on any builder who fails to comply with the regulations.

"We insist that builders obtain a permit before they start to build," said one commission member. "If this is not done from now on, the penalty provided by the ordinance will be applied."

And in order that the service director in his routine checks will know new construction is being done legally, the builder will have to fasten his permit to the structure at some point where it will be plainly visible."

He explained that in order to speed up the granting of permits, the job of checking building applications has been turned over to Service Director John Neuding. If found satisfactory, Neuding will turn the permit over to Commissioner Leslie May for approval and signing.

Farmers Loan Agency Doing Big Business

WASHINGTON, May 2—The Farmers Home Administration says it has loaned out $4,563,000 for construction or repair of homes and other buildings under the new farm housing program.

This money was distributed to more than 1,000 farm owners who could not borrow from other sources, FHA says.

About 500 additional loans amounting to $2 million have been approved and will be issued soon, while 5,000 others have been tentatively approved, the agency reports.

Loans are being used for barns, poultry houses and other farm buildings and homes. Most of the borrowers are building new structures rather than retiring run-down ones.

The farm housing program was authorized by the Housing Act of 1949 and got underway last November.

Heer Trial Jury Selected

COLUMBUS, May 2 — Testimony was to begin today in the first-degree murder trial of James D. Heer, 20-year-old Ohio State university freshman from Euclid.

Heer is accused of the "fraternity row" shooting Nov. 12 of his friend and fraternity brother, Jack T. McKeown, 21, of Norwood, an Ohio State senior and managing editor of The Ohio State Lantern, the university's student newspaper.

Seven women and two men were selected as prospective jurors as the trial opened yesterday in Franklin County criminal court. Defense Attorney Matthew L. Bigger indicated Heer's defense will be drunkenness.

Kiwanis Club Goes In For Some Horseplay

Circleville Kiwanis Club let its hair down Monday evening, shelved its usually highly-educational program and, instead, underwent a "Hellzapoppin'" all its own.

It was "Sinawik Night"—Sinawik meaning Kiwanis spelled backward. Sinawik is a newly-formed fun group within the club which attempts to add spice to generally-serious Kiwanis functions.

Headed by George Fishpaw and Paul Hang, Sinawik did everything backwards. Des sert was the first course served at the dinner in Pickaway Country Club. Members found lifelike snakes and bugs in their salads. Charles Weidinger, sporting size 12 shoes, largest in the club, was presented a pair of togless socks—"good for expansion."

William Ammer was handed an ear of corn as winner of a hog-calling contest and C. O. Leist, Circleville city safety director, was asked to read all of the city's new—and very lengthy—milk ordinance. Song Leader Truman Eberle was asked to direct club singing—numbers being those of French and Dutch languages.

The meeting, while a success insofar as the Sinawiks were concerned, broke up in confusion.

Kiwanis Club Goes In For Some Horseplay

Circleville Kiwanis Club let its hair down Monday evening, shelved its usually highly-educational program and, instead, underwent a "Hellzapoppin'" all its own.

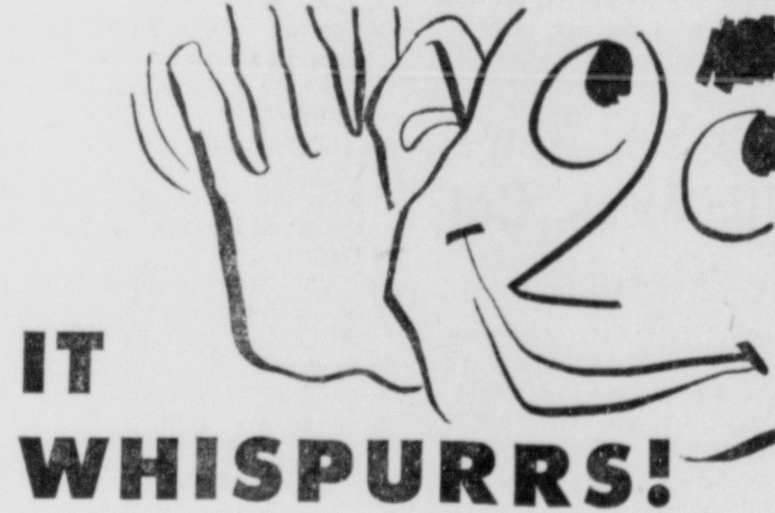

It was "Sinawik Night"—Sinawik meaning Kiwanis spelled backward. Sinawik is a newly-formed fun group within the club which attempts to add spice to generally-serious Kiwanis functions.

Headed by George Fishpaw and Paul Hang, Sinawik did everything backwards. Des sert

was the first course served at the dinner in Pickaway Country Club. Members found lifelike snakes and bugs in their salads. Charles Weidinger, sporting size 12 shoes, largest in the club, was presented a pair of toecless socks—"good for expansion."

William Ammer was handed an ear of corn as winner of a hog-calling contest and C. O. Leist, Circleville city safety director, was asked to read all of the city's new—and very lengthy—milk ordinance. Song Leader Truman Eberle was asked to direct club singing—numbers being those of French and Dutch languages.

The meeting, while a success insofar as the Sinawiks were concerned, broke up in confusion.

Quiet such as you've never found in a low-priced car will greet you when you "Test Drive" a '50 Ford. For Ford's great V-8 is "hushed" to a whisper, and "sound-conditioning" keeps noise out of its 13-way stronger "Lifeguard" Body. And you'll go for Ford's low first cost, low upkeep and maintenance cost, high resale value. Come in and "Test Drive" it, today!
